Scene Description: It's Christmas eve and we follow Santa delivering gifts, until he discovers the comfort of furniture and accidentally takes the night off!

Character Notes: A warm, instantly recognizable Santa with a generous, approachable presence. Strong facial storytelling and physical comedy.

Note: You don't have to purchase a costume for this self tape. If you have red or green to wear, we encourage you to wear them, if you don't have either, that's ok too!

SLATE: First and last name. City.

SCENE

The night has been successful so far. You confidently enter the next home—chimney style! You shimmy down—it's smooth at first but soon, you have to push yourself out. It's awkward but you land with determination.

Upon landing, you take a deep breath and take a look around the festive home. You express a warm smile and give a cheery:

SANTA: Ho, ho, ho

You walk around the lit Christmas tree. You stretch your arms and head as you walk around. Your body is already feeling the fatigue from the night's gift-giving duties.

Then your eyes spot a plate of cookies and a fresh glass of milk. You can't resist. You sit down on the chair next to the plate. It's a recliner. Soft, comfortable. You raise your feet up. Soon you forget about the cookies and bask in the comfort of this chair. You can't help but doze off.

You wake up in the same recliner but you're back at the North Pole. You wake up groggy and confused—the North Pole has been transformed with new furniture!
